INTRODUCTION

PREFACE

The concept of Electronic Government or E-Government is initiated with the aim to lead Sarawak into the Information Age. Information and Communication Technology (ICT) plays an increasingly significant role in everyday life. ICT revolutionize work, leisure and the ways businesses are conducted. ICT applications also enhance the delivery of goods and services to people by improving the process and management of government.

E-Government utilizes ICT or online services to enhance the access to and delivery of government services to benefit the people, business partners and employees. It also assists in strengthening the drive towards effective governance and increased transparency to better manage socio-economic resources for future development.

The Sarawak State Government, has successfully initiated and implemented nine (9) online services and three (3) information services to effectively and efficiently distribute services to the people without time and space constraints. The nine online services are Paybills Malaysia, e-Booking, e-Recruitment, e-Form, e-Talikhidmat, e-Request, e-Scholarship, e-Registration and e-Library. The three information services are Panoramic Images of Sarawak, Interactive City Maps and Real-time Hydrological Information.

An overview of the nine online services and three information services is provided in this booklet. For more information on each of these e-Government online services/ applications, please visit us at www.sarawak.gov.my

LOOK FOR JOBS (e-Recruitment)

Looking for jobs in the Sarawak State Government used to be by searching through vacancy ads in the local newspapers or checking out notices on display in government offices. This is a thing of the past with the leaps and bounds achieved with Information and Communication Technology (ICT).

e-Recruitment is an online system that not only enables you to apply for job vacancies in the Sarawak State Government, it also allows you to publish and update your resumes online so that appropriate job vacancies can be matched with your qualifications and you can be short-listed or called for interviews immediately.

e-Recruitment is convenient and efficient to use and automates the entire recruitment process in terms of storing applicants information, publishing vacant posts, expediting short listing procedures and interview notifications and evaluations. It is designed to reduce costs and speed up their recruitment process.

Registered users are able to state job preferences, receive notifications via e-mail or sms (short messaging services) when a job match is entered into the database system, and also check on the status of their applications. An e-mail or sms will alert applicants of any changes in application status or update them on new information such as interview time, date and venue. This makes e-Recruitment a quality job application and selection management system.

As of 20 February 2008, about 95,516 applicants had registered with e-Recruitment. Since its implementation, this online service had advertised and processed 388 vacancies published online by 16 State Government agencies.

ONLINE LIBRARIES(e-Library)

When we talk about libraries, images of books, magazines, even maps, tapes and cassettes come into mind. Libraries have existed for ages and till today, still play a critical role as a central resource for information and research. However, libraries have evolved from being just information resource centres to become communication and learning hubs with the advancement in digital technology and the Internet known as the information age.

The information age through the Internet provides a vast gateway into infinite knowledge, not only for the gathering of information but also the dissemination of information. The Internet thus enables libraries to become digitalized, shifting from being conventional physical buildings to become web-based borderless entities.

BENEFITS OF E-LIBRARY

Breaking of library walls and going beyond hours

No rushing to the library before closing hours to read, do research, borrow or return books. You can just sit back and connect online to begin your research work anytime, anywhere.

Knowledge exchange and resource sharing

A centralized network of libraries provides you with a one-stop search engine industriously searching across multiple library collections. This way, a major city library could open and share its resources online with a smaller library in a town of another locality. If you are in the smaller library, you can perform a search function, browse and select from the collection in the major city library. Inter-library loan is arranged when a particular book is required by you.
